

REPUBLICAN SWEEP TAKES ON LANDSLIDE PROPORTIONS

PHILADELPHIA GIVES TICKET 110,000 LEAD

Substantial Gains in Both Houses of Legislature Assured Governor-Elect Duff

65 PER CENT TURNOUT

By the Associated Press
Philadelphia, Nov. 6.—(P)—Republican vote at a landslide, unequalled since the pre-New Deal era—today returned the G. O. P. to complete dominance of Pennsylvania politics.

Governor Edward Martin was elected to the U. S. Senate by a majority of more than 300,000, ending the 12-year tenure of Joseph F. Guffey. Three other Republican state-wide candidates swept into office with him, Attorney General James H. Duff taking over the governorship.

The GOP captured 28 congressional seats, a gain of nine in the second largest house delegation. The Democrats retained five.

Substantial Republican gains in both houses of the legislature assured Duff of a major victory in his program for the biggest GOP majority since 1932.

Martin's plurality exceeded that in any Pennsylvania senatorial contest since James J. Davis (R) defeated Segwick Kistler (D) in 1920 by 938,248. Similarly, Duff's lead was the largest since John S. Fisher (R) defeated Eugene C. Bonnell (D) by 799,543 in 1928, the record plurality in the gubernatorial elections in Pennsylvania since 1790.

Crisp clear autumn weather brought voters thronging to the polls yesterday to set another new record for votes in an off-year election. Upwards of 65 percent of the state's 4,375,665 registered voters participated.

Provisional results of returns from the first precinct reported, from Camden County, and rolled into commanding leads as the Philadelphia vote was tallied.

Philadelphia gave Martin a 110,000 lead in his running mates almost as much.

Pittsburgh, where the Democrats hoped to offset a probable setback in traditionally Republican Philadelphia, teetered in the early count, then leaned to the Republican side.

Industrial and coal-mining areas, new deal Democratic strongholds, topped into the Republican column. Rural counties, where much of Pennsylvania's "farm vote" is centered, plunged again for the G. O. P. Only Fayette and Greene counties, long Democratic fortresses, in southwestern Pennsylvania, (Turn to Page Nine)

Stalin Substitute Broadcasts Speech

London, Nov. 6.—(P)—Marshall A. Zhdanov, chairman of the Supreme Soviet of the U. S. S. R., declared in Moscow today that "the blood of our people was not shed for imperialist expansionists and pretenders to world domination—for atom blackmailers."

Zhdanov spoke before a meeting of the Moscow Soviet on the eve of the 29th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution. His words were broadcast by the Moscow radio.

Prime Minister Stalin had been expected to speak. Soviet sources in London said they were uncertain whether Stalin would deliver his customary anniversary-eve address later.

The celebration meeting sent greetings to Stalin, whose apparent absence was not immediately explained. Zhdanov, sometimes mentioned as a successor to the prime minister, quoted Stalin repeatedly and the audience applauded each reference to him.

As the final results of yesterday's elections dribbled in today, it became clear to everyone that the Republicans had won a majority—and therefore control—in the house.

This Republican house victory alone—without the Republican triumph in the senate which seemed within reach as dawn broke over Mr. Truman—was enough to box him up.

He had tough enough going—since he became president in April, 1945—with a congress where both houses were dominated by his own Democrats.

Two-Third Majority Assured For G. O. P. in State Senate

Harrisburg, Nov. 6.—(P)—Pennsylvania Republican legislators won their greatest edge in the commonwealth's general assembly since the advent of the new deal in 1932.

The count in the GOP sweep yesterday stood 171 Republicans to 33 Democrats in the house, with four contests undecided. Twenty victories were counted in the senate races to only five for the Democrats, giving the Republicans a two-third majority of 34-16 for the first time since 1924.

The GOP wave was so broad it gave Republicans 16 of the 21 seats in Allegheny county, traditional Democratic stronghold, and 39 of Philadelphia's 44 places. In the 1945 general assembly, the lineup was 21 Democrats, six Republicans in Allegheny; 31 Democrats, nine Republicans in Philadelphia.

Elimination of two Democratic senators in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia gave the Republicans undisputed control of the upper branch, including the votes to confirm and administer appointments. Holdover Republican number 14, Democrats 13.

With a margin of at least 66 votes more than the 105 needed to enact legislation in sight in contrast to the four-vote margin held by the GOP in the 1945 session of the general assembly, Republicans in the lower branch can act on the party's post-war program with little more than token opposition in sight. In 1945, the division was 109-90. The last time the GOP held such a lopsided majority was in the 1931-32 session when there were 184 Republicans to 22 Democrats.

Speaker Ira T. Fiss, of Snyder county, and Majority Leader Franklin H. Lichtenwalter, of Lehigh, were two of the incumbent Republicans returned to the house. Some Republican leaders have mentioned Lichtenwalter as speaker in the event Fiss does not seek a third term.

On the Democratic side, at least 64 incumbents either were re-elected or did not seek re-election, eliminating such figures as Reps. Reuben Cohen and J. Harold Levy, of Philadelphia, and John L. Boney, of Luzerne. Rep. Hiram C. Andrews, house minority leader, was re-elected, however, in Cambria.

State Senators Edward J. Coleman, B. B. McGinnis, Allegheny, and John J. McCreesh, Philadelphia, all Democrats, and Edwin S. Bowers, Fayette, a Republican, were eliminated.

Rep. Jeannette Dye, Mercer Republican, was the only one of the four women members in the 1945 legislature who was re-elected. Reps. Mary A. Varrallo and Josephine C. Coyle, both Philadelphia Democrats, lost, while Anne Brancato (D-Phila.), did not seek re-election.

Then they'd rearrange the important committees, naming Republican chairmen, and making sure that every committee had a majority of Republicans on it.

Even if the Republicans won only the house, and not the senate there'd be trouble enough for Mr. Truman, as he well knew. Both houses have to approve a bill before it can become law.

Republican victory in both houses would be just a double dose of headache.

(A lot of his suggestions got mislaid or waylaid in that Democratic congress of his. Some went through. But many were ignored or voted down by Democrats and Republicans gangling up.)

Right off the bat Mr. Truman knew the Republicans, winners in the house, would set out to take full charge by appointing a speaker.

Turnout At Polls In County Is Almost 70% of Voters Who Were Eligible To Cast Ballots

Warren county, traditionally Republican, on Tuesday rolled up a little better than its usual vote in a gubernatorial election. While it had been estimated that 50% of the vote registered would be cast, the figure ran a little higher. The GOP polled about a 67% vote and the Democrats polled about a 70% vote. The turnout to the polls was remarkable in that most of the voters paraded to the polls and few had to be given transportation. There was seemingly a determination on the part of the voters to cast their ballots and every precinct in the county ran about true as the general average.

The weather was crisp and clear and this may account for the large vote. Another fact noted was that the voting started early and continued throughout the day in a most steady manner.

As usual, Dr. LeRoy Chapman, candidate for a fourth term for state senate, led the ticket in the county. He had 7660 votes cast for him, with a plurality of 5290 over Henry Nicholson, his opponent. It was the 23rd time that Dr. Chapman's name had appeared on a ballot and in every instance he has been a winner for the place which he sought. His return to the state senate this year will place him in the enviable position of being the dean of the senate.

The various candidates in the county received the following: For U. S. Senator—Gov. Edward Martin (R) 7689, Joseph Guffey (D) 2438.

For Governor—Duff (R) 7480; Rice (D) 2339.

For Lieut. Gov.—Strickler (R) 7445; Dent (D) 2477.

For Sec. Internal Affairs—Livingood (R) 7367; Schmid (D) 2342.

For Congress—Gavin (R) 7540; Huth (D) 2410.

For State Senate—Chapman (R) 7689; Nicholson (D) 2370.

For General Assembly—Gibson (R) 7514; Pales (D) 2342.

One peculiar feature of the balloting was the fact that after the voting had ended and the polls had closed there seemed to be a feeling that everything would be all right and at the editorial rooms of the Times-Mirror there were a few who called asking for results. Among the voters the results seemed to be a foregone conclusion.

Returns were received unofficially at the County Commissioners' office and there was a small group of the faithful gathered there who watched the reports from the various districts carefully.

The effect on the CIO on the voting was negligible an fact it seemed to be borne out that the support of the CIO was a liability.

Following this brief flare-up, however, the two men joined in refreshments after agreeing with Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain and Deputy Foreign Minister Couve de Murville of France to start today's session and continue until both Yugoslavia and Italy had been heard.

In one issue after another Molotov showed up on the minority side of stalemate issues in the projected Italian peace treaty—but the Big four must be unanimous before any agreement can be voted.

Here is the twin-paneled picture: 1. Negotiations between Lewis and officials of the Federal Coal Mines Administration were scheduled to resume today after the election day recess. At issue is whether the government's contract with the U. M. W. can be reopened by Lewis.

2. The NLRB called for final arguments tomorrow on the unionization of supervisors at four Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation mines in western Pennsylvania.

This issue poses one of the most vexing differences between Lewis and the soft coal operators. It is the primary reason why the government has been forced to retain possession of the mines it seized last May.

Hence tomorrow's hearing is one more step in the planned appeal of the entire issue to the United States supreme court.

Adams county, in which Gettysburg is located, plunged for the GOP, too—Duff polling 6,782 to 5,866 for Rice.

Adriatic Port Of Trieste Is Still Debated

New York, Nov. 6.—(P)—A showdown fight between the United States and Russia over control of the key Adriatic port of Trieste appeared to be developing rapidly today with Yugoslavia and Italy both called to testify before the Big-Four Foreign Ministers Council here.

Yugoslavia, with Russian backing, is driving for domination of the port while the United States, with Britain and other western powers, insists on a strong United Nations government.

One phase of the row grew so sharp last night that Foreign Minister Molotov of Russia accused Secretary of State Byrnes of trying to deliver an "ultimatum" to the council to force it to take action considered unfavorable to Yugoslavia. Byrnes struck back with pointed digs at Molotov's constant insistence on his own views.

Martin Undecided As To Resigning Office

Harrisburg, Nov. 6.—(P)—Wearing a broad victory smile, U. S. Senator-elect Edward Martin interspersed his gubernatorial duties today with acceptance of congratulations from thousands of Pennsylvanians.

A huge pile of correspondence dominated his desk as he took time out occasionally to pose for photographers after defeating incumbent Joseph F. Guffey, Pittsburgh Democrat, for the senate seat.

Asked whether he will resign as governor to be sworn in for his new post when the senate organizes Jan. 6, the governor replied:

"I haven't given that any thought yet."

Capitol observers said it was yet too early to say that the GOP controls the senate. Martin may stay on as governor until the new governor, James H. Duff, is inaugurated Jan. 21.

Warning For Party Issued By Wallace

Washington, Nov. 6.—(P)—Henry Wallace, new-dealer former vice president and secretary of commerce, interpreted the election results today as meaning "the Democratic party will either become more progressive or it will die."

Wallace recently ousted from President Truman's cabinet after a controversy over policy toward Russia, said in a statement:

"Progressives, I feel, are not discouraged by the outcome of the election."

"The Republican congress will inevitably multiply our economic problems and the American people, who fundamentally are always progressive in their attitudes will then turn to liberal leadership for help."

"As a result of this election the Democratic party will come more progressive or it will die. I do not expect it to die."

Senator Guffey (D-Pa.), who was among the Democratic casualties, took only ten words to say what he thought of the results.

"The people evidently wanted a change and they got it," Guffey's aides, who issued the statement at the capitol, said that would be the senator's only comment. Guffey flew to Washington from Pittsburgh yesterday afternoon.

MORE CONTROLS ARE LIFTED BY THE OPA

Washington, Nov. 5.—(P)—OPA removed price controls today from household vacuum cleaners and attachments as well as certain items of bedding and home laundry equipment.

Control was effective immediately on all of the items, which included feathered and down, feather-filled pillows, domestic ironing machines and domestic clothes dryers.

Pittsburgh Taverns May Be Picketed

Pittsburgh, Nov. 6.—(P)—Bartenders, waiters and waitresses were called upon today by the AFL-Teamsters to strike at all places handling beer from Pittsburgh breweries.

The new step in the Teamsters' jurisdictional war against the CIO-Brewery Workers' union was announced last night by Lester M. Hunt, editor of the union's official organ.

Hunt said it was decided at a conference of officials of the Teamsters' Union, Local 158 of the AFL-Bartenders' Union, and Local 237 of the AFL-Hotel and Restaurant Employees' Alliance, to picket any tavern where employees walk out.

Picket lines will be maintained, Hunt declared, until the local beer is returned to its source and the owners of the cafes sign closed shop agreements covering both bartenders and waiters.

The final step rested with David L. Behncke, president of the AFL Air Line Pilots Association, who was expected to summon the union's master executive council to Chicago for a decision. This made it unlikely that the union would give its answer immediately.

THUNDERING TIDE OF VOTES CARRIES GOP INTO CONTROL OF BOTH HOUSE AND SENATE

Republicans won control of both house and senate of the 80th congress today in a triumphant landslide that overturned the Democrats for the first time in 15 years.

The result meant a congress meeting in January politically divided from the White House. Tradition pointed a favorable finger, too, toward GOP capture of the White House two years hence.

President Truman, who arrived by special train from voting in Missouri, declined comment to reporters who sought his views on the election results.

The GOP went over the top for house control in tabulations of late returns at 11:50. A few minutes later Arthur B. Watkins, Republican candidate, won a victory in Utah which gave his party undisputed possession of the senate.

Watkins defeated Senator Aba Murdock (D), who usually has been listed as a supporter of President Truman's administration.

The Republicans previously had overturned more than enough Democratic seats to win the house—provided they hold their own in 33 contests which still are undecided. The net GOP gain in contests which have been decided was 39. A final net increase of 26 is enough to insure Republican control when all races are finally settled.

For a victory in the senate—which could be obtained by winning one more Democratic seat—the GOP looked to close contests in Nevada, Montana, Utah and New Mexico. Their candidates held leads in all of these. In Maryland, Wyoming and West Virginia, where races are not settled, the Democrats were ahead.

If the Democrats won all of these races, the senate would face a 48 to 48 deadlock, which could only be broken by agreement between the two parties or shift by some member, since there is no vice president to cast a deciding vote.

With the vote counting nearing its final stage, the situation stood as follows:

House—213 Republicans elected for net gain of 39 in completed contests (including one former Progressive seat); 167 Democrats elected for net loss of 38. Rep. Vito Marcantonio, (Al-N. Y.) elected as only minor party member.

In 53 undecided races, Republicans held 17, Democrats 36 in 79th congress. The Republicans needed a net gain of 26 to have the 218 majority necessary to organize the new house.

Senate—(Including holdovers)—48 Republicans, 42 Democrats. Six races were undecided, with Republicans leading in four and Democrats in two. Republicans net gain at this point was nine, with total of ten needed for control.

In 34 governorship races, Republicans had elected 20, the Democrats 10. The GOP took over three formerly held by the Democrats in Idaho, Massachusetts and Ohio, but yielded one to the Democrats in Colorado. In four undecided contests, the Democrats lead in Arizona, Nevada, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

The prospective upset in congressional control would mean a change of officials, from speaker to lowest clerk.

Republican Leader Joseph Martin (Mass.) is expected to become speaker replacing Rep. Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) with a Republican house victory.

In the senate, Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R-Mich.) probably would be chosen as presiding officer to succeed Senator Kenneth D. McKellar (D-Tenn.) if the Republicans win one more seat. Senator Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) was other adviser, as chairman of the foreign relations committee in a shift which would put Republicans in all top committee posts.

There the Republicans won nine house seats previously held by the Democrats, in addition to retaining all of the places they had held.

The state gave Gov. Edward Martin, Republican, a margin over Senator Joseph Guffey, a New Deal wheelhorse, of more than 600,000 for the senate seat the Democrat had held since 1933.

GOP leaders joyously counted the house theirs. They said they had little doubt that the senate also would fall, giving them complete control of the nation's legislative machinery.

Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannagan glumly left his party's headquarters early in the morning without comment. But speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) said in Enid, Okla., he recalled it looked like the Democrats had lost the house in 1933 but the next day we pulled ahead 24 seats."

Rep. Joseph Lister (Mass.) in line to become speaker of a Republican house, said his party accepts "the responsibility the Americans have placed on our shoulders."

Many Farmers Finance Crops By Use of FHA Loans at Present

The local Farm Security Administration office has opened with a new name and a new program of loans and services to Warren County farmers.

County Supervisor, Lyle A. Crooks, announced at his office, in the Ostrander Building at Smethport, Pa., that the new Farmers Home Administration program established by Congress of its last session to simplify and improve credit services for farmers, is effective as of today and that the local office will be doing business as the FHA rather than FSA from today forward.

Mr. Crooks said the new program will follow closely the ten-year-old Farm Security program of loans and supervision for farmers who have difficulty locating satisfactory credit through standard credit channels.

The Farm Security operating loans for feed, seed, fertilizer, tools, livestock and other non real estate expenses will be replaced by FHA operating loans at the same rates, terms and interest (one-to-five year loans at five per cent, up to $50,000) but with a limit of $50,000 in loans to any one farmer at any one time.

In McKean, Potter and Warren Counties, 115 farmers are now financing their operations with loans for Farm Ownership made under the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act will continue much as before but with interest raised from 3 to 3 1/2 per cent. These loans are 40 year credits for outright purchase and repair of family-type farms. The new law also provides a program for insurance of mortgages on family-type farms which gives the farmer for the first time an equivalent of the insured mortgages which finance city-dwellers' homes.

The insurance will guarantee repayment of 90 per cent of the face value of loans made under the same terms as the direct Farm Ownership loans. Terms will be 40 years at 3 1/2 per cent with one per cent deducted from the lender's return to cover cost of insurance.

Mr. Crooks explained that preference in all types of FHA credit will be given to veterans of any war, which will for the time being at least, virtually eliminate the possibility of ownership loans to non-veterans.

The ending of the FSA program after ten years of work in these counties marks the close of the depression-born agency's work with low-income farmers. In its work here, aid has been extended to 250 farm families.

Solar Electric Official Is Lions Speaker

At the Tuesday evening meeting of the Lions club, Stuart J. Myers of the Solar Electric Corporation gave a very interesting talk on the manufacture of incandescent and fluorescent lamps.

Each year the United States uses 600,000,000 lamp bulbs. These range in size from 6 watt to 1500 watt and are of many different voltages and types such as colored, infra-red, farm, mine, mill-type, rough-service, tubular, decorative, and various kinds of reflector lamps, etc.

The heart of the lamp is the filament. Edison first used a piece of carbonized bamboo. Later a straight tungsten filament was used. This was afterwards replaced with a coiled filament. Recently a coiled-coil filament has been used to obtain greater efficiency.

High-speed automatic machinery is used throughout the various steps in the manufacture of incandescent lamps.

Although few people know it, the first fluorescent lamp patents were taken out by Thomas Edison in 1897. There are many problems encountered in the making of this type of lamp which are not common to other types.

At the result of a drawing which was held, Bob Wilson received a very handsome necktie.

Willis Lundahl was present as a guest at the meeting.

A Doctor Can Help You to Avoid Colds

By MULLEN DRUG CO.

It will save you time, money and considerable discomfort if you will consult your physician on how to prevent colds.

Every cold is a threat. Each one is an open invitation to something that may be serious.

Doctors' warnings, literally obeyed, can forestall, ward off, and certainly lighten the toll taken by the so-called "common cold."

Some people respond to cold serums with complete immunity. Others suffer fewer colds, and have them more lightly when thus protected.

Consult your doctor at least twice a year, and obey his advice.

Yesterday Is Nowhere

Chapter 9

NIEL answered nothing because he was watching Stephanie walk toward them, her head uplifted in birdlike wariness as if she expected them to vanish. The dark gray of her coat and hat flattered her delicate coloring. At her close approach the horses perked their ears and turned their splendid eyes on her. As she fondled them her eyes met his in friendliness.

"This is Black Handsome and this Black Gallant. We are utterly vain about them." Her reserved half laugh suggested a deeper humor.

"They're getting fat," mourned Conrad.

"It's so long since you've driven them."

"Oh, those old days... remember!" murmured Conrad. Niel thought they must have shared a lot together, like himself and Freya.

She looked unbelievably small sitting between them on the high seat. Conrad balanced the reins then with a whistle they were off. A lovely tremulous harmony filled the air.

"The bells!" cried Niel.

She was pleased by his enthusiasm. "They were made in Switzerland, toned like music."

He enjoyed the thrill of unexpected speed, the tangy cold air, snow flowing backward like a glittering white sea and the continuous unreeling of green pines with here and there a flash of distant mountains. It was happy intoxication.

She felt it too. Her golden hair rioting back in the sunshine enhancing the delicacy of her features so that he couldn't keep his eyes off her face for long. It wasn't a beautiful face but she created a more intriguing illusion of beauty, particularly when she smiled.

Conrad urged on the horses with extravagant flattery, away, away, and away... as if there was no world other than what was there with them. He felt a wild desire to shout but he sang instead and the others joined in. It was a little as if they were drunk, perhaps their senses were drunk. They raced down the valley toward the river and as they crossed Niel wondered if it wouldn't be a good thing if the ice cracked open and they went down while they were still singing.

On the opposite bank they stopped. Conrad pointed toward the horizon to a lone skier and they watched him take the slope with a skill that held them silent; or perhaps it was his freedom to choose his course, freedom to swoop out of their line of vision when they desired to keep him in view so that they could think only of him, not of themselves.

"I'd like to try that slope," murmured Niel but when they remained silent he wished he hadn't said it because suddenly it seemed he would never be free again.

THE sun was going, a violet dimness softened the glare of the snow as they turned back. After a particularly rousing chorus Stephanie asked who taught him the German songs," he said quietly. A startled look crossed her face.

"Oh," she said, and dropped her eyes; they didn't sing again.

With the sun went most of their happiness. Nearer home Conrad urged the horses once more but this time Stephanie seemed too lost in her thoughts to laugh. They turned a bend and a woman was walking in the same direction ahead of them. Suddenly Conrad leaned forward and cracked the whip over the horses. As they leaped forward Niel felt Stephanie go tense beside him and he wondered why she was frightened. He measured the distance to the woman hoping Conrad in his sudden recklessness would leave her enough room. Now the horses were almost upon her, she turned her head to look at them and Niel's breath almost choked him. It was Freya!

He shouted her name, but his voice was so hoarse she couldn't recognize it. She smiled and waved as they flashed past her. For a split second he was going to jump but the speed was too fast. All he could do was turn and wave. But she was still smiling so he knew she did not recognize him, then the sleigh careened around a bend and she was gone.

"Stop, damn you!" he shouted, but Conrad's face blanketed of emotion kept up the speed to prevent him leaping from the sleigh.

He pressed the back of his hand against his lips and Stephanie saw the white of his teeth biting against his knuckles. Tears sprang to her eyes. Let her cry, thought Niel violently, let her stare at my face till she can never forget it. Then she turned her head and slipped her hand under Conrad's arm and a long look passed between them.

He almost hated them for knowing something about him he didn't know. It made him laugh aloud so harshly they both looked at him and he flung a contemptuous look back at them before he turned away. Then he was lost in concentration on Freya... how could he capture anything from that flashing sight after years of not seeing her. But these two were Freya's friends, gradually his anger cooled so that when they reached the house he lifted her from the sleigh.

"I'm sorry," she said quietly. He tried to smile but couldn't. "Don't judge us too harshly."

That moved him. "It's never judge you... or Conrad."

"Thank you," Her lips were trembling as she turned away to the house.

"That was kind of you," said Conrad. "She's unhappy about Freya and all this." Niel wanted to say, so are you, but one could only think such things.

At the door of his room a cat rubbed against his ankles startling him out of his sober thought. Conrad shook it away and it frisked down the hall to a narrow door open toward them and disappeared. So that was the way to the attic. Then they heard Joseph knocking up the steps and he appeared at the end of the hall. So there was a back stair leading down to the side vestibule he had seen last night from the drawing room. If he could break into the attic from his room!

Sometimes your operator feels like this

There's nothing your operator would rather do than answer your signal as soon as you lift the receiver.

Most of the time, she does just that. But occasionally, traffic gets so heavy that there simply aren't enough cords to handle all the incoming calls. So your operator is helpless to answer your call until some other call is completed.

This doesn't happen often. Service is usually good... and will be even better when we receive the additional equipment we have on order. In the meantime... if there's a slight delay now and then... we hope you'll understand.

WINGS OF TOMORROW: The Story of Aviation

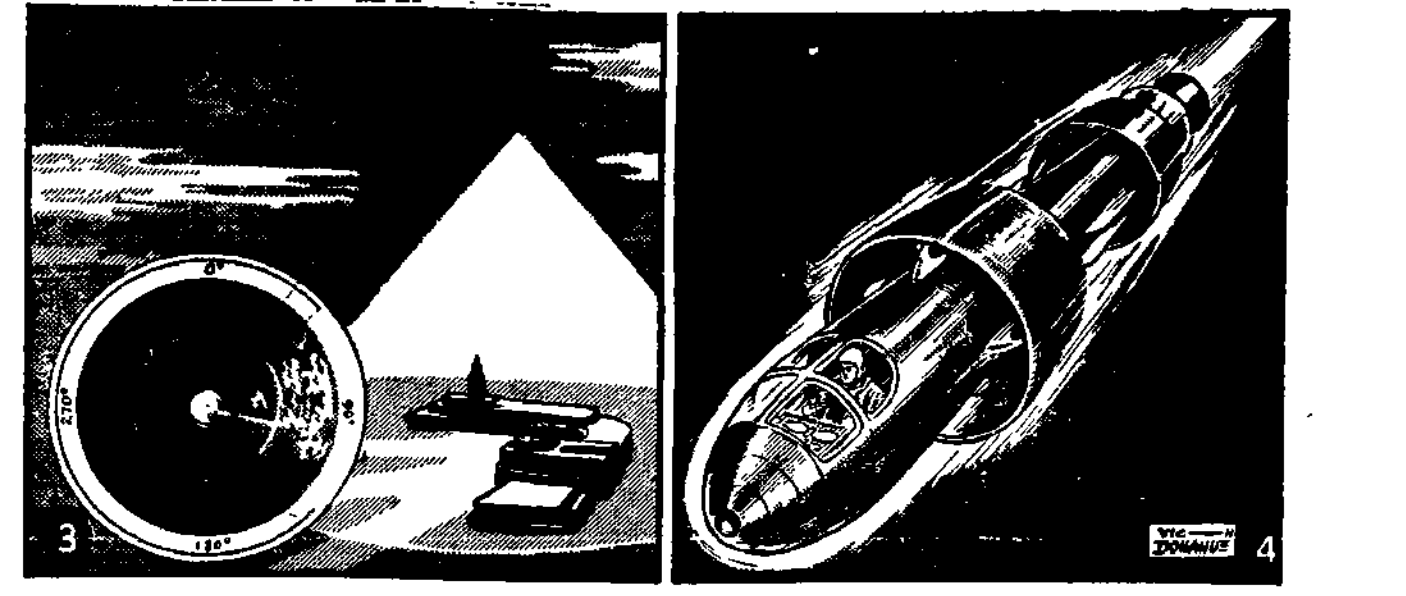

BY CHARLES TRACY
Aviation editor, Cleveland Press, former Army pilot
(Written for NEA Service)

(1) Modern aerial warfare brought from the skies such terror as the German V-2 rockets and ram-jet-propelled "buzz bombs" launched on England in a final desperate attempt to defeat her. The Allies' best countermeasures were radio-controlled bombs dropped from high-flying planes and guided by radar and television. Meanwhile, American scientists worked in great secrecy on the most powerful weapon devised since man learned to fight wars with explosives—the atomic bomb. Unleashed on two Japanese cities, it brought the Pacific war to a quick end. These fantastic developments indicate how awesome future weapons may be.

(2) The recent tests of the amazing new bomb conducted at Bikini in the Marshall Islands will give scientists knowledge of its true power and of the requirements for effective defense against it. Its highly concentrated destructive power will have a marked influence on the air force of the future, which by 1950 will be completely jet-propelled. There may be no need henceforth for immense bombing planes capable of carrying gigantic loads. A small plane the size of today's fighter will be able to carry one atomic bomb, packing the punch of an entire squadron of the past war's Superfortresses.

(3) Radar and television are now being used to flight-test jet fighters. Controlled from the ground or from a "mother" plane, the craft can be maneuvered beyond the limits of safety applicable when a human pilot is carried. Latest navigation aids include a radar device which pictures the surrounding country on a screen when the ground is obscured by clouds from the pilot. A wartime development, it aided bomber crews in finding their targets. Air liners will soon make use of similar devices.

(4) Rocket-propelled planes, already glide-tested by the Army and now being prepared for the first man-carrying flights, will succeed the jets in military aviation. Later, scientists may find ways of applying atomic power to aircraft, improving upon the astounding performance of the rocket planes. To do this, the problem, at present insurmountable, of protecting the occupants of the atom-powered plane from radiation must be solved. Perhaps by that time, if fighting air forces are still being built, it will no longer be necessary that men pilot the planes. Radio-guided missiles will do the fighting.

ELECTION AFTERMATH

By his victory in Tuesday's record-breaking election, Governor Edward Martin ends the two-year Democratic monopoly of Pennsylvania's senatorships. Martin, at 67, goes to the postwar senate as a veteran of three wars, having been retired on age as a brigadier general in 1942.

Guffey, an original New Dealer who campaigned on his record of thoroughgoing support of the late President Roosevelt and his program, has served 12 years in the senate. Chief Pennsylvania dispenser of federal patronage, he has been a top leader of the Democrats, just as Martin has been among Republicans.

Martin, throughout the campaign, was sharply critical of reconversion policies of the Democratic national administration.

Duff comes to the governorship pledged to a platform of "good housekeeping" in the state government. He has reiterated his support of policies inaugurated by Governor Martin, and promised to carry on with them.

The shakeup in Pennsylvania's congressional delegation was of national importance as the GOP moved toward possible control of both house and senate. The gain of nine seats in Pennsylvania was slightly more than one-third of the national total necessary for Republican control of the house.

All six Philadelphia district seats swung from the Democratic column to the Republican. Two other GOP gains were made in the anthracite region, and the ninth in the Reading area where veteran Democrat Daniel K. Hoch was unseated.

Pittsburgh Democratic forces managed to maintain their congress lineup unchanged.

On the state legislative front, continued Republican control of both houses in the general assembly not only is assured but considerably strengthened, with a two-thirds GOP majority in the senate hinging on Sen. A. H. Letzler's (R-Clearfield) success in a bid for reelection.

In the last legislature, Democrats were able to hamstring some Republican moves by refusing to confirm occasional appointments. A two-thirds majority is required for confirmation.

A gain of 50 to 60 Republicans in the house provides a big majority for administration bills in contrast to the four-vote margin held by the GOP in the 1945 session.

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE

It is a wonderful and salutary experience to be put in a position from which one can view matters from the other fellow's point of view.

By the same token, many of the ills of this old world would be banished were such a process generally possible, and were we humans intelligent enough and progressive enough to profit from the experience, says the Olean Times-Herald.

The subject was touched on in Syracuse the other day by Dr. Edwin T. Dahlberg, President of the Northern Baptist Convention, who spoke before the New York State Baptist Missionary Convention.

Dr. Dahlberg expressed the wish that "every doctor could have a major operation. Every policeman could spend six months in jail. Every minister serve a year in a penitentiary, and every industrialist become a member of a labor union."

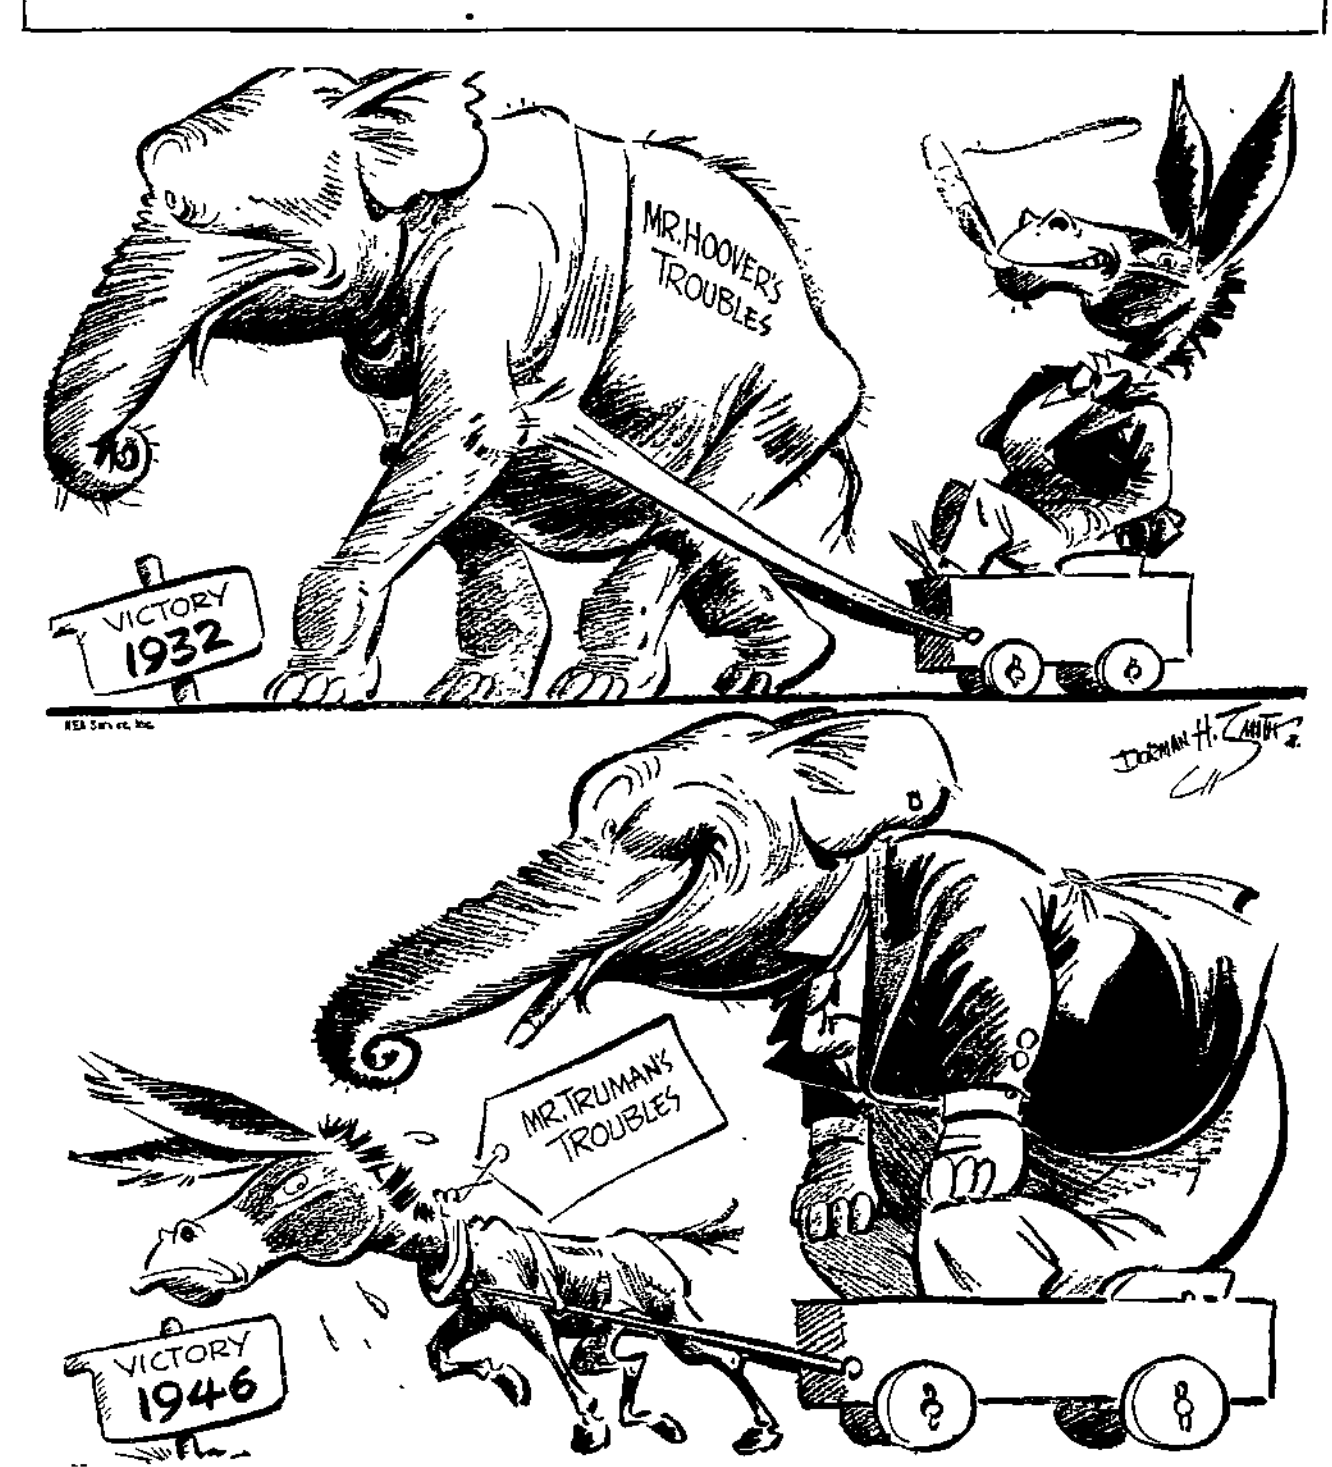

"We get nowhere," he said, "by drawing an iron curtain around ourselves and shutting ourselves out from cultural contacts with other fellowships of life."

"Conservatives and liberals in religion, for example, have much to learn from each other, as has Catholics and Protestants. Jews and Gentiles."

He's perfectly right, of course. All of us tend to regard matters, and especially problems and their solution, from our own viewpoints; without taking into consideration the viewpoints of others—which, after all are just as important as our own.

Most of us could make life's little round infinitely more pleasant, indeed, if we would but carry out this idea in our own homes. How many of us, for instance, fully understand and appreciate the cares, the aggravations and the plain drudgery borne, without anything greater than a mild complaint as to being "tired," by the average housewife each day of her life?

Tit for Tat—Or All's Fair In Politics

YEARS AGO IN WARREN

Interesting Items Taken From The Warren Evening Times

In 1926

So great is the interest in the annual Warren-Jamestown grid classic tomorrow, that letters received in Warren yesterday from Buffalo were to the effect that a large group of students from the Lafayette High in that city would be in attendance. Syracuse is also sending a small delegation.

Judge D. U. Arid returned yesterday from Erie, where he presided over a session of court in that city, and this morning left for Tionesta to hold another in the Forest county court house.

Although Chief Gordon has so far been unable to find a cable splicer to repair the No. 3 line of the fire alarm system the conduit has dried out sufficiently to allow the alarm to work, but it will be necessary that the injury to the cable be overhauled before there can be any certainty that the calls come into the station correctly.

The canteen, which has been installed in the club rooms of the Company I, is doing a flourishing business and during the bad weather of the past few days, the quarters have been crowded each night with members of the unit playing cards, checkers, listening to the radio and other amusements.

Washington Daybook

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—The telephone and the typewriter, much more than politics, have made Washington seem "more than an ordinarily feminine town," says Jonathan Daniels, former press secretary to President Roosevelt.

In his new book, "Frontier on the Potomac," Mr. Daniels observes that it is a strange thing that a quarter of a century after the Nineteenth Amendment there is such an acute scarcity of important women in the government of the nation.

"Nobody even discusses any more that old suggestion that women would elevate and purify the politics of their country," he says, adding that the women "have not done very well even for themselves."

He points out that once there was a lady Cabinet officer. That was Francis Perkins, Secretary of Labor. He cites that there were but 10 women in Congress in 1946 and even fewer women in the whole executive branch getting as much as $9,000 a year.

"The electing people have done better by the sex than the appointing officials," he says.

Daniels concedes that the congresswomen are important, but he believes that the really significant women in the capital are seldom seen in the newspapers, but they are effective and essential in the operation of government itself.

He lists among these Ruth Shipley, head of the State Department's passport division since 1933; Marguerite Owen, representative of the TVA; Mary E. Switzer, assistant to the administrator of the Federal Security Agency; Bess Goodykoontz, Assistant Commissioner, U. S. Office of Education; and Katharine Blackburn, chief of the Government Information Service.

He doubts, however, "that even they are as important as the greater number of non-coms of 'know-how' who are secretaries and assistants to a great many male officials."

He admits that there are important women in Washington who are not in government. These include rich and socially prominent women like Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean, Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, Mrs. Gifford Pinchot and Mrs. J. Sorden Harriman. A good deal of government, he points out, meets at their dinner tables.

"SOCIETY in Washington is a very serious business," Daniels says.

President Roosevelt used to hint that the high variety of hospitality in the town is passing and talked about the more elegant past. Mr. Daniels writes:

"In World War I, he (FDR) said, the tired official looking for recreation in the afternoon could take his choice on Massachusetts Ave. of the house where every kind of drink was served, the residence where artists and writers and intellectuals served high talk about an artistic hostess, and a mansion where the music was soft, so were the sofas, and the ladies were very pretty."

Daniels says Mr. Roosevelt called them the saloon, the salon and the Salome. Daniels takes this line for the title of the chapter I review. He says he doubts that they are gone.

method in thanking Mrs. Swanson.

"Gibby" Johnson, popular member of the firm operating the Style Shop, continues to improve, according to word from the Warren General Hospital. This will be good news to his many good friends.

The Woman's Relief Corps of Youngville, will meet on Thursday, Nov. 12 at the home of Mrs. Maye Hoover for the regular turkey dinner.

WINGS OF TOMORROW: The Story of Aviation

No. 10: Planes for Everyone

BY CHARLES TRACY
Aviation editor, Cleveland Press; former Army pilot
(Written for NEA Service)

(1) Light personal planes may be purchased over the counters of New York department stores today, a fact which indicates the widespread popularity flying will enjoy in the immediate future. Half a dozen manufacturers are building 30 to 50 planes daily to fill the demand, which is expected to reach 500,000 within five years. During the next decade roadable planes will be perfected. Fitted with rotors, they'll replace present-day convertibles. Experts predict that a million such craft will crowd the airways within the next score of years.

(2) Roof-top landing facilities for the "pin-wheel" craft may soon be as common as today's parking lots. Cities will become de-centralized as new suburbs are built around beautifully landscaped air-parks where all residents fly and the family garage contains the new type convertible. Approximately a third of the traffic today crowding the nation's freeways will take to the air. Cities which have waterfronts will pioneer this new era by establishing downtown landing mats now being planned.

(3) Playing an important role in the transition to the air is the present-day helicopter. Large cities now using helicopters to carry mail to outlying airports will find them useful as ambulances and as fire-fighters. De luxe helicopter taxis will rush the time-conscious business executive to widely scattered suburbs of expanded cities.

(4) In the more distant future, atomic power will also be applied to personal aircraft. Like the legendary magic carpet, the atom-powered plane will combine the high speed of the rocket with the conveniences of the helicopter. A trip to the Panama Canal or Alaska from Ohio will be merely an afternoon cruise. Families who like to travel may circle the globe on a week-end, pausing at the press of a button to hover over points of interest.

Stamp News

SIX stamps recently issued by Bolivia commemorate the 100th anniversary in November, 1945, of the South American republic's national anthem. Bolivia thus becomes the second Latin American nation to call attention to its national anthem through the use of postage stamps. The Dominican Republic issued five stamps in that category earlier this year.

Bolivia's commemoratives feature a few bars of the anthem as the central design, and portraits of the composer, Benedito Vincenti, and the lyricist, J. J. De Sanjines, at the left and right respectively. Across the top is the inscription "Centenario del Himno Nacional" and at the bottom "1845-18 de Noviembre-1945." Values are 5-centavo lavender, 10-c blue, 15-c green, 30-c orange, 50-c blue-green, and two-boliviano black.

Little is known of Vincent except that he was of Italian nationality. De Sanjines was an attorney, legislator, poet and a signer of Bolivia's declaration of independence. The hymn was first heard at La Paz in 1842.

A WELCOME change from usual stamp designs are six new semi-postals released by the Netherlands which portray in line drawings the fresh, youthful faces of Holland's princesses—Beatrix, 8; Irene, 7, and Margriet, 3. The little girls are daughters of Crown Princess Juliana and Prince Bernhard. A special act of Canada's Parliament was necessary to make little Margriet a Dutch citizen, for she was born in Ottawa, Canada, where her mother lived during the war years. The Canadian Parliament obliged by making the house in which she was born temporarily Dutch territory.

Designed to raise funds for needy children and the anti-tuberculosis drive, each stamp bears the name of the Princess Beatrix, 8; Irene, 7, and Margriet, 3. Some Advice On Cutting Of Trees From Local Woodlots

Some farmers plan to cut a crop of trees from their woodlands at least once every five years.

This is possible in mature old growth timber. In fact, a profitable cut can be made in some well managed woods as often as once every three years. This latter is not generally recommended because it takes a very good growth of trees to stand it.

Owners who cut frequently should cut carefully. They should take out primarily the mature and over-mature trees. Even a light cut of good size trees results in a lot of board footage of logs for sale and a nice cash income.

Such a light cut—that is, light in the number of trees felled—is often just about the right size-operation for the farmer to handle as a part-time job for himself and his family, or other help he has had on his place.

Frequent removal of mature trees not only brings in a constant cash profit. If done right, it should open up the stand and improve growing conditions for the remaining younger trees. The wise

BRIDGE IS UNIQUE AT NEWSMEN'S CLUB

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY
America's Card Authority

Written for NEA Service
While in Washington recently I had lunch at the National Press Club and then strolled into the card room. I would like to tell you how they play bridge at the National Press Club.

Entering the card room, you find four or five members having lunch and discussing politics. A game of dominoes is in progress at the next table, with the ivory dominoes cracking loudly on the wooden table.

On the other side of the bridge game there is a game of gin rummy, also a little game of draw poker. Each bridge player has at least two kibitzers, and the boys play like politicians seeking reelection. In other words, the object of the game appears to be give-away.

Here is one of the hands I saw played. Declarer won the opening lead in dummy with the queen of clubs, led a small heart and fanned the jack, West refusing to win.

Now declarer, believing he had located the king of hearts, played a small spade and went right up with dummy's ace, then returned another heart. He fanned the queen, West won with the king and quickly played the ten of clubs.

South suddenly discovered that he could not make the contract because he had forgotten to cash the ace, king and queen of diamonds. If he had, done so after his first heart, he would have been assured of 10 tricks.

The play of most bridge hands is not complicated. The first and most important lesson to learn is to count your tricks. Had declarer taken time to do this, he would not have fallen into West's trap.

BROADWAY

By JACK O'BRIAN

NEW YORK—If you're a songwriter, and who isn't, there's an organization called the Song Hit Guild, incorporated in California in 1938, which has been discovering tune talent and bringing it toward success with the help of such musical gentlemen as Al Jolson, Ferde Grofe, Bandleader Les Brown and Marnie Sacks, vice-president of Columbia Records.

If an amateur can write words, or music, or both, or for that matter even has simply a provocative title for a song, he can get expert attention from the Song Hit Guild.

The guild confines its attention simply to new songwriters. If, for instance, the song, words, or just the title, are attractive enough to come to the attention of, say, Al Jolson, chairman, and the other members of the board, a new writer stands a hefty chance of making from $250 to whatever top Hit Parade tunes return.

When a song is accepted, $250 is paid in advance royalties. Jolson and his well-known compatriots looked into the matter at length before they gave it their wholehearted approval, knowing the shabby reputations of firms which make amateur talent pay through the nose to have a tune published.

The corporation is not entirely philanthropic, for the management is anxious to make money with the songs they discover, and to that purpose will bend their shoulders to turning unknown tunes into favorites just as other music firms who deal in established talents.

HARRY REVEL, who wrote "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking," "Stay as Sweet As You Are," and dozens of other hit songs, including those in the score for last season's Broadway musical "Are You With It," will write music to the amateurs' words.

Bobby Worth will fashion tunes and lyrics for those who submit only titles, calling on lengthy experience writing such favorites as the lyrics to "Tonight We Love," and both words and music for "Do I Worry?" Ferde Grofe, whose talents are wide and proven, will compose tunes for submitted lyrics. Vick Knight, radio producer, song publisher and lyricist, has supplied the Hit Parade with such topnotchers as "That Foolie," "Melancholy Mood" and "I Walk Alone." Eddie DeLange, who wrote lyrics for "Solitude," "Moonlight," "Heaven Can Wait," "Along the Navajo Trail" and the current and climbing "Passe," will do the same for the tyros.

Its absence of hokum and frankly honest approach to its ends is the reason it has gathered such highly respected craftsmen into its fold. Jolson, in accepting the job of chairman of its advisory board, said: "I am proud to be among those associated with such a sincere undertaking, and consider it a privilege to serve as a member of your advisory board." The headquarters are in Hollywood.

A Peacetime Goal

That Better Parenthood Week we mentioned previously is all very well, but why limit it to a week? Shouldn't the whole year be devoted to better parenthood? We're quoting Katharine Lenroot again today, because as chief of the U. S. Children's Bureau, she is in a position to know what it's all about—She thinks most parents, understandably, strive to bring up their children in a good neighborhood. But is that enough? What of the neighborhood other children are being brought up in, children upon whom this nation is also dependent if it is to grow strong and great? "I have these other children especially in mind," she says, "for we at the Children's Bureau perhaps know more about them than do most. From all sides we are told of children who are being neglected, mistreated and abused. Sometimes they are living just around the corner from those good neighborhoods where other children are being brought up with the best the country has to offer available to them. Now, we cannot give to all children an equal chance, but can we not give them at least a reasonable chance? I think we can if we parents extend to the entire community their neighborhood interest. What they need to do is to work together, as they did in the war years, toward a common goal. That peacetime goal might very well be to secure the best possible chance for the most children. I think that goal would turn out to be something like this: 1. For each child a good home with the love and care of both parents. 2. A healthy start in life. 3. Schooling for every child to the maximum of his capacities and powers. 4. Companionship with other children, free of humiliating barriers of race or class or creed. 5. An opportunity for self-expression and spiritual growth. 6. Full preparation for useful work in a trade, a business or a profession. 7. A chance in adult life for a reasonable feature of security for himself and his family, with ever broadening avenue for participation in the affairs of the neighborhood, the community, and the nation."

Tickets Are Still Available For PTA Production

Mrs. Albert Ristau, chairman of the Clare Tree Major children's plays for Community PTA Council this season, reminds the young people of Warren and surrounding communities that the first production, "Nobody's Girl," will be given at the Library Theatre at 10 a. m. Saturday, November 9.

Demand for tickets has been so good in past seasons, according to the chairman, that the morning performance was decided upon in favor of the matinee and evening shows given in the past two years. Mrs. Ristau states there are both season and single admissions still to be had for this year, "Nobody's Girl" on Saturday, to be followed by the more familiar "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" on Saturday, March 23. "Nobody's Girl" is not nearly so well known to the children as most of the play selections have been, it has the "happy ending" that is the normal expectation of childhood, and, like many of the Clare Tree Major productions, is interesting to American children because it deals with characters of another day and another country.

Social Events

ALTAR SOCIETY AT ST. JOSEPH'S
St. Joseph's Altar Society will hold its regular meeting Friday evening of this week, with services in the church at 7:30 o'clock, followed by the business session in the clubrooms in the school building. Impossible for Penn State to Play Minus Colored Boys

State College, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Penn State coach Bob Higgins today announced the cancellation of the University of Pennsylvania game, scheduled for Nov. 29, "was the only thing we could do" in view of an impassioned question of allowing two negro players on Penn State's team to participate.

Tucker Loss a Hard Blow to The Army

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 6.—(AP)—It is an accepted axiom of football that it takes a good quarterback to make the "T" formation click. It also is a well-known fact that football players sometimes get hurt.

"It was agreed by both of us that it was impossible for Miami, in their situation, to have colored boys come down there, and it was impossible for us not to let them play," Higgins told a reporter in response to questioning.

Higgins said neither of the youths had been consulted about the situation, "for it wasn't their problem, it was ours."

Higgins commented that "all teams from the north" will have to take the racial attitude into consideration when scheduling games with southern schools.

Red Jackets Will Have No Advance Sales

There will be no advance sale of tickets for the Red Jackets-Masontown Pals game here Sunday, it was announced today by Manager Fred Gebhardt.

In addition to the heavy guarantee necessary to bring this attraction to Warren the visitors also demand the privilege of an option, and it is for the latter reason that there will be no advance ticket sale as settlement on prior sales is not completed until later in the week.

Masontown is the first club to insist on this arrangement but the attraction is so worthy that the local officials consented, anxious to get the best available opposition.

Baski To Have Turn With Woodcock

London, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Big Joe Baski, latest in the parade of American boxers to cash in on booming British fight gates, appeared likely today to be matched in the near future with Empire Heavyweight Champion Bruce Woodcock.

Baski dispensed with Britain's No. 2 fighter, light heavyweight champion Freddie Mills, in a non-title fight before a sellout crowd of 10,700 in Harringay arena last night. The American was awarded a technical knockout when Mills failed to answer the bell for the start of the seventh round.

Mills was bleeding badly from both eyes when his seconds pitched him in the sponge after six stanzas of the scheduled ten-round bout. Baski weighed 21½, Mills 184.

High Gridders Split Games At Lakewood

A group of close to 27 high school gridders journeyed to Lakewood yesterday afternoon where the Seniors of Lakewood and the Juniors tangled with Lakewood's similar squad.

The Seniors dropped their game 30-6 while the Juniors took this advantage to show up the Seniors by defeating Lakewood 56-0.

The Junior high gridders of Lincoln Jamestown, who have come through a season undefeated with a Jamestown city championship, will come to Warren tonight to meet the Beatty Junior High team on Russell Field, the kick being scheduled for 3:30.

The Jamestown team scored a victory over the locals with a sizeable score a few weeks back.

Changes In Yank Set-Up Are Coming

New York, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The job of reviving the sagging baseball fortunes of the once-mighty New York Yankees has been saddled on the shoulders of Stanley (Bucky) Harris, a reported $350,000-a-year ex-boy wonder who was returned to the playing field from the executive ranks.

A minor shakeup is imminent, when his new job was formally announced by President Larry MacPhail, that he was interested in a first baseman, a catcher, some pitchers and another outfielder.

Chapman Has Majority Of Over 12,463

Dr. LeRoy Chapman of Warren, Republican member of the state senate from Warren-Venango county district, was returned to office by an overwhelming majority in Tuesday's general election, on the basis of complete and unofficial returns early this morning.

In Venango county the vote from 64 of the 78 precincts gave Chapman 10,228 to Nicholson's 3,955, while the complete, but unofficial total from Warren county gave Chapman 7,660 compared to Nicholson's 2,370 votes.

STATE SEN. L. E. CHAPMAN

Dr. LeRoy Chapman has again been returned to the Pennsylvania State Senate by an overwhelming vote both in Warren and Venango counties. ColumbusTwp. Votes For New Machines

At the election held Tuesday citizens of Columbus township voted on the matter of installing voting machines in the district there. This will see the machines placed in service there at the next balloting provided they can be secured.

The speed with which returns are received from the machine equipped districts was well exemplified yesterday when returns from such districts poured into the commissioners' office within a short time after the polls closed.

There is need in other large districts in the county for the machines and it is understood that citizens of Pine Grove township will ask that a vote or machines there be included on the next ballots there.

Several of the other larger districts in the county could well be equipped with machines and among them are Lakewood borough and Pleasant township. Both cast a large vote, comparatively, and the machines would aid greatly in getting in early returns.

Gavin Given 22,720 Votes Over His Rival

Voters in all six counties in the 18th congressional district left no doubt as to their choice for a representative for the next two years when, in Tuesday's general election, they gave Leon H. Gavin, Oil City Republican incumbent, a convincing majority over his Democratic opponent, Lloyd N. Huth, also of Oil City.

Gavin amassed a majority of 22,720 votes over his rival on the basis of unofficial and incomplete returns. There were only 16 of the 26 precincts in the district to be heard from.

Gavin	39,789
Huth	17,019
Although returns in the contest are unofficial and incomplete, the disparity leaves little to indicate that the trend would be changed. The vote for the candidates in each of the six counties follows:
Venango (84 out of 78 dists)	10,285 3,046
Clarion (52 out of 52 dists)	6,448 3,461
Forest (14 out of 14 dists)	1,173 579
Warren (51 out of 51 dists)	7,340 2,410
Elk (27 out of 29 dists)	4,959 3,572
Jefferson (75 out of 75 dists)	9,324 3,951

NEW LOBBY CHAIRS

Patrons of the Carver House who have rested in the chairs in the Carver Hotel lobby welcome the fine new leather upholstered chairs that have replaced the old sodden arm chairs that did duty since the memory of men runneth not. The improvement is a nice one and will be followed by others as soon as the furniture and other equipment can be secured.

MAKING GOOD TIME

Thorenson and Farnsworth contractors for the new Nut Shop are making fast time in the installation of the new fittings and the painters will soon be able to get to work. The change will be a remarkable one and Warren folk will find when the new store is thrown open that it will be one of the most modern and attractive places along the street.

MAY LOSE PLANT

Youngsville all probability will lose the proposed plant of the Corry-Jamestown Company for which citizens of Youngsville purchased a site of 14 acres. One hundred thirty-five oil operators and technologists attended. Two Deer Dead Above Akeley In Auto Crash

Jamestown, Nov. 6.—Two deer were killed in one accident when a car struck them after trying to avoid hitting the animals by swerving into a ditch.

The driver, Calvin Crotzer, 22, and passenger, Lester Dickey, 23, told Deputy Arthur Paine who is investigating, that as they were driving to Jamestown about 10:30 p. m. on the Kiantona-Warren road the two deer appeared in front of them just this side of the station line. Crotzer said he tried to avoid the animals by swerving to the left, but the deer and young jumped the same way.

Deputy Paine said he believes the older doe, possibly the mother, was killed instantly, but he had to shoot the young deer. He had them to Frewsburg, where a butcher dressed them. He said they will be presented to some institution today.

Wave of Selling Squelches An Attempted Rally On Exchange

New York, Nov. 5—(P)—A wave of selling squelched an attempted rally in the stock market today in the wake of the nationwide Republican landslide.

Early gains registered by a number of leaders in fairly active dealings were wiped out and dips of more than 2 points followed before the downswing lost its momentum. Although some later recovery was attained here and there, losses were general near the fourth hour.

Traditionally "selling on the good news," Wall Street was reported of the better much of the Republican ballot sweep already had been discounted in recent market sessions. Although many current production and earnings figures were pleasing, little improvement to the nearby labor outlook was expected to result from the congressional returns.

In losing territory much of the day were Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic Steel, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania Railroad, American Telephone, Western Union, A. S. Southern Railway, Electric Power and Light, American Water Works, Anaconda, Air Reduction, Caterpillar Tractor, Eastman Kodak and American Smelting.

Bonds were steady. Cotton dropped the daily permissible limit of $10 a bale and grains were weak.

GOP National Chairman Carroll Reece predicted Republican victories in West Virginia, Maryland, New Mexico and Nevada senate races, which still were in doubt.

Voters swept Gov. Thomas E. Dewey (R) back into office in New York by a majority that climbed toward 750,000 over Senator James Mead (D).

Dewey's margin, projecting him anew into the ranks of GOP presidential possibilities in 1948 carried Irving M. Ives (R) to victory in his senate race with former Gov. Herbert Lehman for the seat Mead vacated.

The same kind of surge gave former Gov. John W. Bricker victory in his Ohio senate race and assured a new term for Senator Arthur Vandenberg in Michigan.

Both are talked as possible Republican presidential candidates two years hence.

Straight-ticket voting prevailed. Northampton, Westmoreland and York counties reported some Democratic and some Republican winners on the state-wide ballot but they were exceptions to the rule.

Local Flyer Cracked Up In New Plane

J. R. Schwone, 124 East Wayne street and Donald Neilson, Plum street have arrived home from Martinsville, West Va., where they cracked up in an airplane which was being flown to the Warren Airport from Fort Worth, Texas. The men had gone to Fort Worth to take over the plane which was an overhaul job of the Silverair two seated type. The plane was a fairly fast one and much faster than the ones Schwone had been flying here. Good time was made to Martinsville when they got off the course and ran low on gas.

A landing had to be made and when the pilot came in on a pasture he found high tension wires rear. He zoomed over them and made another run and came in too fast due to the speed of the plane. The landing caused the wheels to come off and the plane nosed over and was a total loss. It was not insured.

Mr. Schwone stated this morning that Neilson escaped without injuries but that he had cracked bones in his right hand and sustained a cut on the forehead.

Asked if he would buy another plane he replied "No it's too expensive. But the next time I would buy insurance when I got the plane."
